Looking for a low-tech, low-cost introduction to scanning?

The Comboard Visual Communication Aid is frequently used to train beginning scanning skills, and/or as an entry-level scanning communicator. Picture symbols are arranged on the face of the board and the user advances the pointer with the touch of a switch until the desired symbol is reached. Use with one switch for clockwise movement, or two switches for a choice between clockwise and counterclockwise. Pointer speed can be adjusted to meet the needs and abilities of each user. Communication is via picture symbols only. Please note, there is no voice output on this device.
